Steve Balmont

Steve's first acquaintance with pensions was in the late eighties when he assisted the internal auditor at an international bank in the City in resolving "some anomalies" with their pension scheme.

He went on to establish a successful pension audit practice at Moore Stephens, assuming responsibility for national pensions training and technical issues and became a trustee of the firm's own scheme. Steve now has more than thirteen years trusteeship experience, and has been with Law Debenture since early 2000.

Steve is involved with about fifteen pension schemes of varying sizes and complexity. He has dealt with a range of issues such as corporate transactions, diffusing troublesome situations, administrative change, dealing with the Pensions Regulator and meeting the concerned members of schemes in winding-up.

Steve is involved with various industry bodies such as PRAG and NAPF and is also a Governor of London South Bank University. He has chaired NAPF training courses, spoken at conferences, and written about pension risks.
